CRAFT Day 1: Hope Savings Bank

Supplies:

Disposable coffee cup, lid, stickers, scissors, colored pencils

A bank is a something people use to save for something special to give or get in the future. It shows that we have hope for tomorrow. Let's make a personal bank to remind us that our hope is anchored in Jesus.

Choose stickers that will decorate your cup. Color and label the white ones with your name and any colors you like. Cut them out with scissors and add the stickers carefully to the cup. With scissors, make a slot big enough for paper notes or coins to go through starting at the drinking hole, but don't cut all the way across the lid.

Place your bank where you can fill it with birthday money, spare change or prayer requests; and where it can remind you of Jesus' power.

Day 2: Train Signal Skewers

melon baller or knife, bamboo skewers, watermelon, cantelope, honeydew melon.

Together with your child slice or use the baller to make chunks of each fruit, watermelon, cantelope, and honeydew melon. In the story about Paul's shipwreck today, Paul and the men who were sailing with him were brave and had hope because of his trust in God after an awful disaster. Arrange your balls of fruit onto skewers to look like traffic signals; which lights are at the top? What color is at the bottom and the middle? What would happen if the signals were always green? Or if they weren't there at all? How do watching and trusting the signals for a train or in traffic make us feel safe? Does God ever give us a red light? Or a "wait" signal?
